

Have Your Say --- Now!

Probably there have been many times when something happened in a store that made you say to yourself, "I think the owner should know about that!"

Possibly it was something very pleasant. You may have been importantly helped or particularly well served.

Possibly something has happened where you felt you were not well served.

The boss really wants to know.

The purpose of the Good Will Community Survey is to build good will by getting shopping conditions the way you want them.

The only way the merchants can know what you think and what you want is for you to participate in this voluntary Survey.

You will find it very pleasant to do — most interesting — and you will be helping yourself and everyone in the community towards better shopping conditions.

IF YOU HAVE NOT STARTED TO EXPRESS YOUR OPINIONS, LOOK UP MONDAY'S TWO-PAGE ANNOUNCEMENT AND START RIGHT NOW TO DO YOUR SHARE.

Every week is a separate Survey and there will be a different question about shopping conditions each week.

Fire Truck Hits Car In Answering False Drowning

A reported drowning in the Ne-shaminy Creek, Croydon, turned out to be a false alarm but was the cause of a nearly-serious accident involving a fire truck enroute to the scene of the "drowning."

An hour-long search by Bristol Emergency Squad this morning failed to turn up any evidence of the report that "a boy slipped off a boat and drowned in the creek."

With its siren sounding, the Levittown No. 2 Fire Company apparatus was headed for the "drowning" site when it became involved in an accident at Route 13 and Beaver St., Bristol.

The automobile was pulling to the side of the road as the apparatus attempted to pass it. The truck caught the left rear end of the car.

A large chrome bell on the apparatus was thrown to the side of the highway but otherwise the damage was limited to fenders and lights of the two vehicles. The truck was able to continue to its destination.

Bristol Borough Police said Peter Springart, 35, of 1 Red Cedar Drive, Levittown, was driving the apparatus. The car was operated by George R. Lichtenberger, 62, 105 Gable Hill Rd., Levittown.

Officers Peter Caro and John Chichilli, Bristol Borough Police, investigated.

Call at Headquarters

Richard Beatty, vice-president of the Bristol Emergency Squad, said he received the "drowning" call at the squad headquarters. Beatty and William Ford, ambulance driver, said they would continue their search of the creek.

Good Evening!

B.O. Barring For G.G.

Goodbye Giants.

It's official now. They're off to the Coast. Our hearts don't go with them. Twenty-five years of cheering for them are over. It may take a while but maybe we'll switch to the Phils.

Out of this world. That's where a doctor goes in a balloon. He's over 19 miles up and isn't that a peaceful place to be.

Hoffa moves back into the lime-light today. He's a tough man to pin down. The senators will find they have met their match when it comes to debate.

Those waiting for sensational charges in the Confidential trial will be disappointed by the judge's ruling that most of the stars won't have to testify.

There's one curtain the majority of the audience was sorry to see fall.

What happened to the promised rain. There goes the last hope for the crops.

HOFFA'S WIFE AIDS STRIKE-HIT TRUCKERS

She Rented Equipment, Hoffa Says

WASHINGTON (UP) — James R. Hoffa, crown prince of the Teamsters Union, told the Senate Rackets Committee today that his wife owned companies which leased equipment to truckers with labor trouble.

Hoffa said under questioning that the wife of Bert Brennan, another Teamsters official who is associated with Hoffa, also held part of the stock.

He said the first president of one of the firms was James Wrape, a St. Louis attorney for a trucking company which rented Mrs. Hoffa's trucks.

The stocky, cocky heir apparent to the Teamster presidency insisted, however, "I did not set up, nor did I run, nor have the stock of Test Fleet," the business owned by Mrs. Hoffa and Mrs. Brennan.

He said Test Fleet did not hire drivers but leased trucks to a Flint, Mich., firm called Commercial Carriers, which hauled automobiles from factory to dealer. Commercial Carriers hired the drivers under a standard area-wide contract with the Teamsters Union, he said.

The committee called Hoffa for questioning about many things, including charges that he enlisted hoodlum Johnny Dio to help set up seven phony locals with a view to seizing control of all Teamsters in New York City.

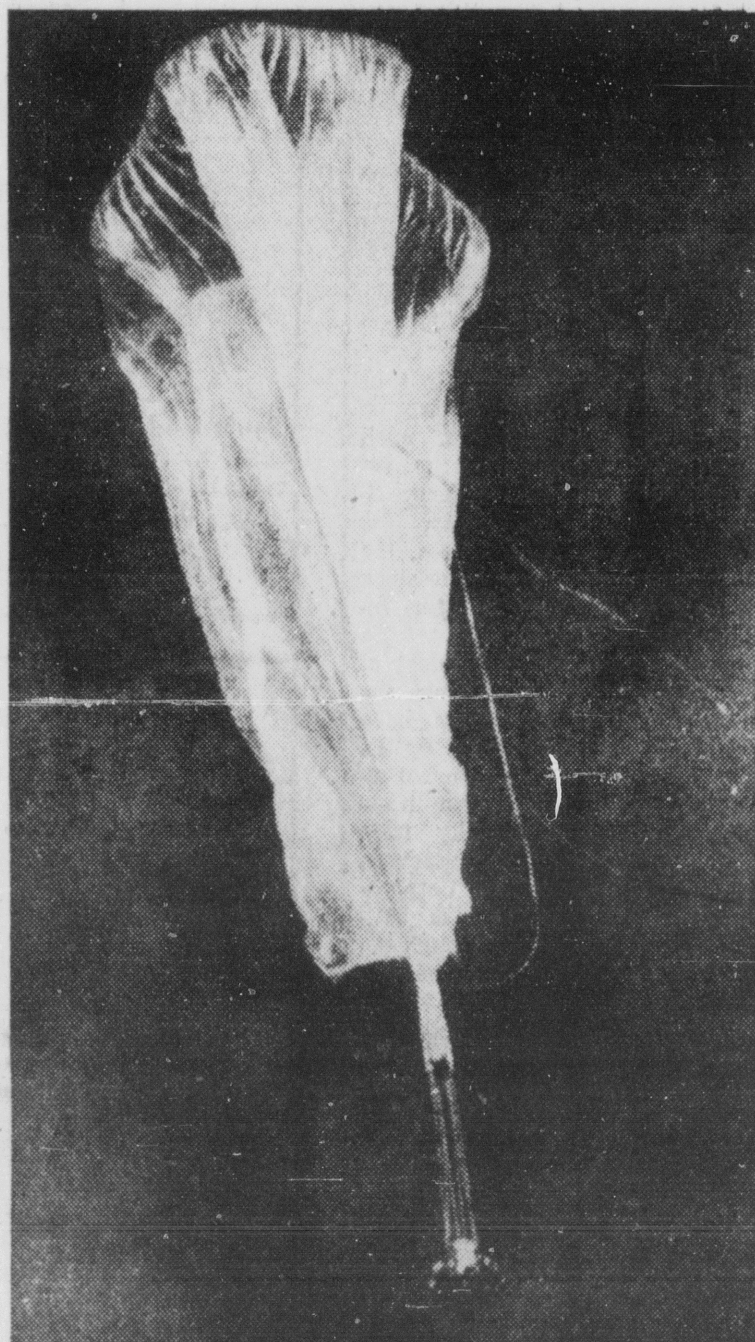

The stocky crown prince of Teamsters, accused of teaming with New York hoodlums and racketeers on his way toward the top, began his testimony with a brief statement that he would answer some questions to the best of his recollection.

But he reserved the right "with-in reason" to amend or revise his answers in the record. He added: "I further reserve the right to refuse to answer any questions which relate to matters outside the scope of the committee's authority or which do not relate to its proper legislative purpose or which are not pertinent to the inquiry."

The committee called Hoff particularly for questioning on previous testimony.

Off It Goes

A 280-foot long balloon, carrying a 7-foot manned capsule, rises rapidly into the sky yesterday after its take-off from the bottom of an open-pit iron mine. Two hours after take-off, Maj. David Simons reported that he had reached the record-breaking altitude of 100,000 feet. (United Press Telephoto).

Balloonist Stays In Stratosphere

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UP) — An Air Force balloonist investigating the fringes of outer space remained aloft today when a fresh wind shift gave his flight new life.

Maj. David G. Simons, 35, an Air Force doctor, had soared to record heights of 19 miles on a scheduled 24-hour flight in the stratosphere. Early today officials ordered him to begin descending ahead of schedule because a large bank of cumulus clouds appeared to be shaping up to the west of his planned landing area.

However, a wind shift lofted the balloon northeastward about 50 miles from the Sisseton, S.D. area to Breckenridge, Minn. Simons' orders then were changed.

"Because of the opportunity to complete extra tests and experiments," a spokesman said, "Major Simons has been allowed to remain up."

Officials were uncertain as to just when Simons would begin his descent.

"There is still a weather factor involved," he said.

Simons had begun his descent when the wind shifted.

Simons had spent a busy night, according to reports from him as relayed by Col. John W. McCurdy of the Air Force.

The pilot took a few catnaps only, totaling an hour. He was awake before sunrise, and thrilled to see the vast eastern sky with its brilliant morning colors. Because he was so high, McCurdy said, Simons saw the sunrise an hour before it opened to watchers on the earth below.

Set Record High

Simons, who hit a record altitude of more than 100,000 feet, or about 19 miles, shortly after he took off at mid-morning Monday, probably was prevented from trying to better that mark this morning.

Turbulence from a severe thunderstorm below Simons' balloon dragged him down to 68,000 feet.

Actress Is Asked To Prove Denial

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — The Defense in the Confidential Magazine criminal libel trial today called on actress Maureen O'Hara to prove in court that she did not misconduct herself in a theater.

Miss O'Hara told newsmen yesterday she was making a movie in Spain in November, 1953, the month that Confidential claimed in an article that she misbehaved in Grauman's Chinese Theater with an unidentified man.

She also showed newsmen a passport which indicated she was out of the country at the time the alleged incident occurred.

But defense attorney Arthur J. Crowley said James Craig, former assistant manager of Grauman's who testified he witnessed the episode, could have been mistaken "a month either way."

Crowley said Craig was willing to undergo a lie detector examination and challenged Miss O'Hara to submit to such a test.

Confidential, which is being sued by Miss O'Hara and other Hollywood stars, introduced Craig as a witness in an attempt to show that articles published by the magazine are true and disclosed without malice.

Troopers Break Up Crowd; Man Arrested

One man was arrested and several men and women struck as State Police used riot sticks to disperse a defiant crowd of 400 which gathered in Dogwood Hollow last night in protest of Levittown's first Negro family.

While the crowds gathered outside, the Negro family, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Myers, Jr., settled down for their first night in their new house at 43 Deepgreen Lane, Dogwood.

The Myers held a press conference in their new home last evening and reaffirmed their intentions to stay in the community.

While the crowd was milling around Dogwood another large group attended a meeting of the Levittown Civic Association held in Delhaas High School. After hearing considerable discussion the LCA decided to poll Levittown residents to see if they favored the admission of Negroes to the community.

Crowd Forms

From the moment the first crowds began to form in front of Myers' home it was apparent something was going to happen last night. At 6:30 p.m. when the press conference started about 100 persons were lined up across the street. This was a larger and noisier crowd than at the same time on any of the other six nights.

During the press conference, held inside the home, the crowd could be heard booing and jeering frequently.

Compliments Crowd

When the crowd on Deepgreen and Daffodil Lane grew to 250 Lt. M.J. Wicker of the Belmont state police barracks, Philadelphia, who was in charge of the police, told the crowd to move on.

"You have been a good crowd but there are too many of you."

Police Puzzle Florida Case

TAMPA, Fla. (UP) — Perplexed police tried today to figure out how and why two persons apparently received fractured skulls while sleeping.

The second case of its kind was disclosed Monday. Police said Hope Leverette Brown, 14, awoke Saturday morning with a fractured skull but was unaware of having been beaten.

The first case occurred last July 23 when Mrs. Neil Keen, 29-year-old wife of a private investigator, awoke in her bedroom with a fractured skull. Neither did she recall an attack.

Officers said the cases are disturbingly similar. Doors and windows in both homes were locked. The attacks occurred in the same general neighborhood. Neither of the victims was molested sexually and nothing was missing from either home.

Officers said Miss Brown apparently was attacked as she slept on a sofa in the garage apartment of her older sister, Mrs. Faith Holton, sometime early Saturday morning.

Ford N.J. Plant Is Ready To Open

PENNSAUKEN, N. J. (UP) — Ford Motor Co. announced today it plans to activate its new parts and export center here early in September.

Urban B. Miller, plant manager said the new 382,000 square foot structure under construction since last fall, will serve a dual purpose.

I am requesting that you go home. If you don't move on I shall direct my men accordingly.

"I know you have a problem and I respect it. I have a problem too and I hope you respect it."

Under the prodding of State Troopers' riot sticks the crowd moved reluctantly but peacefully to Dogwood Drive at Daisy Lane, one block away.

The crowd lined Dogwood Drive and gradually expanded to about 400, stretching along a 50-yard stretch of the curb and pavement.

Some of the residents began throwing stones. One stone hit Sgt. George Gollup, of the Bethlehem barracks.

Lt. M. J. Wicker, of the Belmont barracks who was in one block away.

Deaf Mute Admits Hoax In Bensalem; Suspect Is Freed

The statement "It was all a hoax," freed a Philadelphia man of charges of highway robbery and assault and battery in Bensalem Township, and caused his accuser to be committed to Bucks County Prison on charges of perjury.

Chief William Riempp said the freed man, John Luce, 23, of 112 Parker Ave., Philadelphia, was "falsely accused" last Thursday afternoon of robbing a deaf mute of his watch.

The deaf mute, James T. McGuigan, 22, of 301 East Lehigh Ave., Philadelphia, charged that Luce robbed him of his watch at Route 1 and City Line, Bensalem.

All Points Alarm Justice of the Peace Albert Schultz, said McGuigan swore out the complaint before him and even demonstrated the robbery, writing it down in detail. Chief Riempp said an all-points alarm was sent out for Luce when they learned he was heading for Canada.

The chief said he contacted Connecticut and New York State Police and immigration authorities to be on the lookout for Luce.

Immigration authorities notified the Bensalem chief they had Luce in custody near the Canadian border. He was turned over to New York State Police and the chief was dispatched to pick him up.

Admits Hoax Luce told the chief he was innocent and had nothing to do with any robbery.

Upon investigation, and confronting McGuigan with Luce, the deaf mute "broke down and admitted it was all a hoax," the chief said.

Chief Riempp said the watch was actually sold to a Philadelphia pawn shop about 12:14 p.m., before the alleged robbery. McGuigan told the chief that he and Luce were hitchhiking and couldn't get a ride. "It was agreed between them that they would travel separately and possibly get a ride faster," the chief said. "Apparently," the chief said, "McGuigan then made up a robbery tale."

Taken before JP Schultz yesterday, McGuigan admitted the hoax and found himself charged with perjury. The admission freed Luce from any guilt.

McGuigan is being held without bail in Bucks County Prison, Doylestown. "He'll face grand jury action on the charge," the squire said.

Gov. Leader Calls Area Drought Grave

Plenty of clouds and a trickle of rainfall tantalized Bucks County yesterday and this morning but the worst drought in the history of Southeastern Pennsylvania continues unabated.

Back in his offices after a personal inspection tour of drought damage that included farms in Upper and Central Bucks, Governor George M. Leader said the situation is "grave, even worse than I had feared."

Predictions of the first good soaking rains since April were merely "empty hopes" as the heavy rain clouds moved out to sea.

Drop In The Bucket Rainfall in Lower Bucks County was measured at .01 of an inch this morning; just a drop in the bucket.

Bucks County was last on the agenda of the governor who inspected farm damage in Berks, Chester and Montgomery Counties before joining Bucks County Agricultural Agent William F. Greenawald for a quick "look-see" at this county.

Farms in Buckingham and Furlong were viewed by Gov. Leader, Greenawald and members of the Bucks County Farmers' Drought Emergency Committee. Statistics compiled by the committee estimate farm damage by the drought at $5,000,000.

The four counties Leader visited have taken preliminary steps towards asking for federal disaster assistance.

To secure federal help, the farmers will have to get Gov. Leader's approval.

A State Trooper urges the crowd to leave from the area near the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Myers last night. The warning came ten minutes after State charge of the police last night, then got on the loud speaker. "One of your number has thrown stones at one of my men. I will not tolerate this. I am giving you ten minutes to disperse and go home. If you don't I will tell my men to act accordingly," he told the crowd.

The statement was greeted with jeers and catcalls. The troopers, 21 of them, lined up along the middle of Dogwood Drive. They waited menacingly the entire ten minutes, saying nothing.

Some of the people moved on and left the area. But at least half of the crowd stayed. They moved back a little and stood on the lawn and stared back at the troopers.

When the ten minutes were up Lt. Wicker announced "Your time is up." He then told his men, "Get them out of here!"

In a flash the troopers sprang forward into the crowd. Shouts of "Get moving!" and "You can't hit me!" were mingled with pain as the troopers reached groups of people who hadn't moved yet. Police whacked some of the men in the back of the shoulders and about the head. After the first blows were struck the crowd moved faster.

Several women were spanked with the clubs and quickly dispersed.

Mrs. Patricia Mulhern, 28, of 26 Bentwood Lane, Birch Valley, Levittown, said she was hit by the troopers. She was treated for shock at Lower Bucks County Hospital.

Several other women became hysterical during and after the fracas. One woman was crying and shouting uncontrollably as her husband drove her home.

It took the troopers little more than a minute to clear the area. The crowd quickly reformed a block away on Haines Road and Dogwood Way.

They shouted numerous remarks as "gestapo," "brutes," "dictators" and "women beaters" among others at the troopers.

Donald Walker, 34 of 345 North Park Drive, Levittown, was arrested during the melee and charged with disorderly conduct. He pleaded guilty to the charge and paid a $10 fine plus cost at a hearing before Justice of the Peace John Melvin, of Fallsington.

In the struggle Walker was struck on the head with a club. He was treated at Lower Bucks County Hospital for a scalp wound and then discharged before the hearing.

Walker said when the police ordered the crowd to move he began to walk away with his wife and two children.

"I guess I didn't move fast enough. I hear a policeman holler 'arrest him' and the next thing I know four State policemen grabbed me. My son fell to the ground as the police dragged me away."

"I didn't struggle and didn't resist arrest. Just the same a policeman split my head open from behind," he said.

Lt. Wicker stated that Walker was arrested because he struck at a policeman.

After the excitement died down the crowd stayed on Haines Road until the early hours of the morning. They joked and even sang. At one point they all joined in singing "America."

Take Car Numbers

State Police, determined to break up the final knot of on-lookers about 1:15 a.m. strode across Haines Road and started taking license numbers of parked cars.

Nearly 30 persons, still on the vigil, broke for their cars and drove off, only to park them again further down the street.

At an extraordinary press conference in the comfortable living room of his home, Mr. Myers told the press, "I intend to stay in my Levittown home unless there are unforeseen developments."

Mr. Myers would not elaborate on what he called "unforeseen developments."

"All I want is a chance to be a good neighbor," he said.

Mr. Myers, his wife, Daisy, and their infant daughter, Linda, spent their first night in the Levittown home at 43 Deepgreen Lane last night since they began moving in a week ago.

Goes to Work

With all the turmoil outside the house, the Myers said they spent a "peaceful, restful night." They sat up to about 2 a.m. talking with two friends who stayed through the night. The two friends, both white, stayed all night. They are Thomas Colghan, a representative of the American Friends Service Association and Stephen Remsen, of the Jewish Labor Committee.

Mr. Myers was up and out to work before 7 this morning. Mrs. Myers and friends resumed painting the interior of the home. The living room when they first took possession of the home but left the job unfinished.

The telephone was constantly ringing as friends called to see how they were doing.

Oil was delivered to the house about 12:30 p.m. today. This followed repair of the oil burner by a repairman earlier today.

"I am a veteran and I feel I have a right to live where I choose. I selected my Levittown home because it fit my family needs," he said.

Mr. Myers repeated that he has had no outside backing in his move to Levittown and the entire operation is "strictly on my own accord."

Paid $12,150

He said he paid $12,150 for his Levittown but would not disclose his salary.

The house was on the real estate lists for sale at $13,000. It went off the real estate lists a week before purchase. Mr. Myers bought the home in a private sale from Irving Mandel, who now lives in Mt. Airy, Pa.

Mr. Myers is employed by C.V. Hill in Trenton in the refrigeration testing laboratory. He went back to work yesterday after vacation.

When asked if he feared the crowds thronging to his home nightly, he said, "I'm sure the police will offer protection as long as I need it. I'm certain this will all subside and the people will go home soon."

Mr. Myers said he felt the ban on public meetings by the groups opposing him was unjust.

"They certainly have a right to meet as I have a right to live where I choose," he said.

Mrs. Myers said the family has received great comfort in this time of stress from many friends, old and new.

"I know the crowds gathering outside are not indicative of the feeling of most of the people in Levittown," she said.

'A Great Strain'

Mr. Myers said the pressure brought to bear against him and his family has been a great strain. Mr. Myers said he wouldn't consider an offer to move from his home even if offered a profit.

The press conference had all the features of a Hollywood master production.

Cameras On Hand

Reporters, still photographers and television and newsreel cameras participated in the affair.

The conference was arranged by the American Friends Service Association. A representative of the group, Mr. Colghan, said the association offered his services to Mr. Myers after the trouble erupted and he accepted.

With two burly state troopers guarding the front door, still photographers were ushered in first. They were given several minutes to complete their picture taking.

Reporters were led in to the living room as the police checked credentials. Mr. Myers, speaking in a soft voice but without hesitation, answered all questions freely.

He began the conference with a statement about Sheriff C. LeRoy Murray preventing future meetings.

After the statement the reporters, representing all local papers, radio and TV stations, and national wire services, began firing the questions at him.

Earlier in the day the home was a constant site for passing cars, gawking pedestrians and youngsters on bicycles.

Cars Drive By

Cars continuously drove past the house, slowed near the corner of Deepgreen Lane and Daffodil Lane, gazed at the pink-colored Levittowner and moved past. Mr. Myers came home from work about 4:30 and entered the house. He was driven to the house by a Negro who drove away after dropping off his passenger.

About 5:45, two large bags of groceries were brought into the house by two unidentified women. A bassinet was brought to the house about 6:15. All other furniture was moved in at an earlier date.

News of the Levittown situation has now spread around the world. Many foreign newspapers are now carrying the story. This includes the London Times, Manchester, England, Guardian and Pravda, Russia's government paper.

In Philadelphia police are keeping a special round-the-clock

VFW To Probe Use Of Post Home

Pennsylvania's Veterans of Foreign Wars commander has ordered an investigation over the use of the John Billington VFW Post 6495, Levittown, for a mass meeting to protest the move of the Myers family into the community.

William J. Tepsic, Pittsburgh, commander, said today that racial discrimination was specifically forbidden under the VFW constitution. He said an investigation was being made to determine if the meeting was held at the Levittown VFW post.

"I personally, and officially, as commander of the Department of Pennsylvania, Veterans of Foreign Wars, denounce association of our organization's name with this matter, regret its occurrence and forbid any such meetings at the Levittown post, or at any other VFW post," Tepsic said.

guard at the home of Irving Mandel, 7903 Thouron Ave., Mt. Airy, Mr. Mandel and his family, who sold the Dogwood house to the Myers, are away on vacation.

The Citizens' Committee for Levittown last night drafted a petition, headed, "A Declaration of Conscience," which will be distributed throughout Levittown by a house-to-house canvass for signatures.

The petition says: "We, as residents of Levittown, Pennsylvania, stand for the maintenance of law and order.

"We deplore all acts of violence and intimidation against the Myers' family."

"We are proud of our community and have faith that it will continue to be a good place to live for all of its citizens."

Committee Formed

Registration papers were filed today with the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for the Citizens Committee for Levittown, it was announced by the Rev. Ray Harwick, chairman.

The "Citizens Committee is an unincorporated, non-profit association formed on an emergency basis for a temporary purpose," spokesmen said.

Meanwhile the petitions being circulated by the Levittown Betterment Association have not yet been tabulated.

Members of the committee said petitions are still being carried around and no figures were yet available.

All questions were referred to Mr. Newell, chairman of the group. Newell was at work this morning and unavailable for comment.

LCA To Poll Residents

The Levittown Civic Association voted last night to determine by poll if residents want the Myers family to stay in the community.

At a jammed meeting in Delhaas High School, members of the group and outsiders debated the pros and cons of the situation involving Levittown's first Negro family.

Jim Newell, leader of the anti-

Negro faction said his Levittown Betterment Association, would continue to press the fight to expel the Negro family by legal means.

Newell said his group would meet again tomorrow night at 8 at the Edgely Fire Hall, provided he received legal advice that such a meeting was within the limits of the law.

Sheriff Murray disbanded a meeting of the group several days ago, calling the session "illegal."

Offers Resignation

When the meeting last night became loud and unruly, Joseph Segal, president of the LCA, offered to resign his post in the face of loud opposition. Segal's request was shouted down but he left the meeting early.

Robert Camarote, vice chairman of the betterment group, speaking to the LCA members, pleaded for unity in action against the Negroes.

"I don't want any violence. I've seen war. I've had enough of it. Anybody can look at my service record."

Someone from the crowd yelled, "The police have been violent. We haven't been violent." "That's right. You haven't been violent. You've been fine," Camarote answered.

This brought the loudest roar of the night.

The LCA decided to conduct the poll because it is an incorporated body, entitled to such rights, while the Levittown Betterment Association is not incorporated.

No statement was made as to what will be done with the results of the poll.

May Contact Governor

The LCA also decided to contact Gov. Leader and protest the "State Police brutality" if persons struck would sign statements that they were hit.

"We will send telegrams to the Governor protesting this type of strongarm method," an LCA official told the crowd.

The meeting was adjourned on the plea that more could be accomplished by small committee action than by larger groups.

ous testimony that he got seven bogus locals chartered in order to rig an election that would give him control of all Teamsters in New York City. To do that, it has been charged, he enlisted the help of racketeer Johnny Dio.

Committee Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.), issuing what he called a "tentative ruling" on Hoffa's preliminary statement, remarked that Hoffa's best recollection was the best that the committee can expect "unless we can refresh your memory."

McClellan said the committee transcript will, of course, be available to Hoffa.

As to Hoffa's warning that he might challenge the committee's jurisdiction, McClellan told Hoffa he would have to use "your own judgment and the advice of your counsel on that" if the committee should rule that a question was pertinent and should be answered.

McClellan did not say so, but his statement carried the clear implication that the committee would press a contempt charge if it feels that Hoffa rejected a question which he should have answered.

South Jersey Diner Ruined By Blaze

CAMDEN, N. J. (UP) — Fire roared through a well known South Jersey diner near here early today and first reports indicated damage would run to $500,000.

Fire companies from Collingswood and Westmont were called out to battle the blaze at the Collmont Diner at the intersection of Haddon Ave., and Cuthbert Rd.

The fire of undetermined origin was discovered about 4:15 a.m. when smoke was seen rising from the diner, which was closed. Flames quickly spread and first reports indicated the establishment will be a total loss.

Union Local Gives Policy

The United Steelworkers of America, District No. 7 of which Levittown is a part, called on its members not to participate in any un-American acts of bigotry, but to aid and assist in stopping such actions against a family because they happen not to be white.

Hugh Carcella, director, said the policy of the United Steelworkers of America in respect to equal housing as well as equal job opportunity is well known.

"The desire for a better home and a better life is truly American and the right of every American to seek to better himself is a fundamental principle of our union," he said.

"This veteran, William Myers, Jr., and his family have an inherent right to a better home, a right he has fought to protect, and as an American he and his family are entitled to the full protection of the law," Mr. Carcella said.

"I strongly urge our members to use their influence in the community on behalf of the objectives of our country and our union," Mr. Carcella said.

Leader to declare Pennsylvania a disaster area.

The Federal help would enable Bucks County farmers to get short term loans, lower interest rates and to purchase surplus grain crops at reduced prices.

Drought damage has been rough on lawns, fields and wooded areas as well as farms. Almost all county fire companies are being pressed to keep track of the numerous field fires that are almost a daily occurrence.

Cooler Weather

Cooler temperatures are expected today with a high in the 70's and warming to the middle 80's tomorrow.

In the weather station at Rohm and Haas, a study showed only 14.31 inches has fallen on Lower Bucks this year. The normal is 27.19 inches.

As for the specific period of the drought since April only 3.05 inches have fallen. Normal rainfall for the period is 14.5 inches.

According to Beatty, this is the second time the emergency squad has been called to Croydon for a false alarm within one week. The first was late Sunday night for an accident that never materialized.

Beatty said "this kind of thing is dangerous. The fire truck accident could just as easily have been a serious one."

Levittown Fire Company No. 2 was also called out on a false alarm at the Croydon boatyard last night.

as he drifted over Sisseton, S.D., after dawn.

He dropped the last 100 of his 300 pounds of ballast at that point and began ascending again, reaching 80,000 feet by 7:15 a.m. E.D.T.

He sought to reach a new record altitude, but an Air Force spokesman said he probably was ordered down too soon to make it.

"It was really spectacular to see lightning from above," Simons radioed ground observers in describing the storm. He said he was about 30,000 feet over the storm at the time.

The Air Force said Simons was told to come down because of weather developments which might have complicated a later return. They said a large mass of cumulus clouds had cropped up to the west in the path of Simons' balloon.

"Because of the cumulus build-up, it is more favorable to bring him down in clear weather," an official spokesman said.

The balloon was launched from the 450-foot deep pit to prevent surface winds from damaging it during takeoff.

An Air Force spokesman said Simons is "real excited about the flight and very fascinated with everything he's seeing."

During the night, Simons made extensive readings on the aurora borealis (northern lights), star sightings, and a sighting on the moon.

The doctor's vision at that altitude is not hampered by haze and smoke which restricts vision closer to the ground.

The spokesman said they have been trying to get more descriptive reports from Simons since his ascent, but he has been too busy with his stratospheric activities to give much more than terse scientific reports.

At sunset, however, Simons was so impressed with the beauty surrounding him that he became more expansive and radioed that the sky was "a dark, purplish black, a color I have not seen before and can't really describe."

Sunset Comes Late

"North of me, the color has an even more violent purple tinge," the Air Force scientist reported.

Sunset came hours later for Simons than it did at ground level because the sun's rays were visible for a longer period.

Simons said that at midnight, e.d.t., the temperature inside his gondola was 74 despite a frigid 64 degrees below zero outside.

"He is operating the flight at peak efficiency and authorities have reached a decision to leave him up in the balloon overnight," the Air Force spokesman said.

Simons said he was in very good spirits, his physical efficiency was high and he was comfortable.

School Levy Detailed In Bank Letter

David H. Struble, Democratic candidate for Falls Township Tax Collector today released results of his correspondence with the County Trust Company about the 2 per cent saving on discounted tax bills to residents of Rancher homes in the Falls Township section of Levittown.

Struble said that during the primary campaign he received several inquiries on why County Trust Company did not discount the tax bills.

Struble said the bank notified him on August 14 that current school tax bills now will be discounted. The saving of $2.84 on his tax bill will be passed on.

Struble stated he asked County Trust Company to inquire whether this saving of about $60 over the balance of the mortgage will be applied to all mortgages held by the County Trust Company in Falls Township, or whether each homeowner will have to request this individually.

As soon as he gets a reply he will release the information.

Fire Damages Area House

Fire damaged the roof and attic of a nearly completed house in the Parkland section of Middletown Township, last night.

Fast work by the Langhorne and Parkland fire companies kept the flames from spreading below the attic of the split-level home at Brownsville Road and Playwicki Ave., near the Ne-shaminy Creek.

The house, nearly 80 per cent completed, is being constructed by Albert Reel, Langhorne builder, and was to have been ready for occupancy by the end of the month.

Clayton Ervin, assistant chief of the Langhorne company, estimated the damage at close to $5,000. He said the entire roof will have to be replaced and the attic was badly gutted by flames.

Firemen were unable to determine the cause but reported it evidently started in the attic.

Man Injured In Collision

A Newportville man was slightly injured in a two-car crash at the one lane bridge, Newportville Road, Levittown, at 6:40 a.m. today.

The cars approached the bridge from opposite directions and neither yielded the right of way.

Maurice Bloodgood, 26, of 4102 Sunset Ave., Newportville, the driver of one car, was treated for minor scalp lacerations at Lower Bucks County Hospital.

Bristol Township police identified the other driver as Majk Maliczyszyn, 40, of 218 Cleveland St., Bristol.

In another early morning crash, Robert E. Lee, 32, of 42 Geranium Road, Levittown, was admitted to the hospital with a possible concussion. His car crashed into a utility pole on Emilie Road near Green Lane, Levittown, at 12:40 a.m.

Action Postponed On Foreign Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate Appropriations Committee today postponed action on President Eisenhower's foreign aid money request. It asked the administration for more detailed information.

The action came at a one hour and 15 minute closed-door session where the President's supporters planned to put back most of the $99 million dollars cut out of the $3,367,800,000 program by the House last week.

Just before the committee met, Eisenhower appealed to Republican leaders at a White House conference to support him in his fight for a full-scale mutual security program.

Asiatic Flu Cases Found In State Disprove Fears

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UP)—Records of the state Health Department show there have been only three proven cases of Asiatic flu in Pennsylvania thus far and there should be no "unnecessary fear" of the disease in the state, a three-member committee of the state Medical Society said Monday.

Dr. Pascal F. Lucchesi, of Philadelphia, chairman of the society's Committee on Preventive Medicine and Public Health, said there is no epidemic of the disease in Pennsylvania.

"However, there is the possibility of outbreaks of Asian influenza in areas of the United States, especially in over-congested districts," he warned.

Dr. Lucchesi said cases of the infection in the United States have been of a "mild and unalarming nature." He urged maximum of cooperation between county medical societies, state health agencies and national health groups in studying the spread of the disease.

Dr. Elmer G. Shelley, a committee member and president of the society, said a monovalent type vaccine now being manufactured will be ready within two months. He said two shots of the vaccine spaced three weeks apart will provide protection against the disease for the early winter months. He said a booster shot six months later will give year-long immunity.

Dr. James V. Appel of Lancaster, a member of the state committee and the American Medical Association's Committee on Influenza, said the U.S. Public Health Service will establish priority groups. The program, he said, will be administered on a local basis by county medical societies.

The three-member committee held a special meeting in conjunction with the three-day Sixth Annual Public Health Conference underway at the Pennsylvania State University.

Dr. Lucchesi said the theme of the committee meeting was to "allay the unnecessary fear in the mind of the public" regarding the disease which spread from China.

"The disease must not be ignored because of its mild character since large numbers of the population, as high as 20 per cent might, be temporarily incapacitated at one specific time by Asian influenza," he said.

He said that when the vaccine is available doctors will make certain that every patient will receive shots regardless of ability to pay.

State Health Secretary Berwyn F. Mattison speaking at the opening session of the conference Monday, recommended a "priorities" system when the vaccine is available.

The Pennsylvania Public Health Association, meeting with the conference, chose Mary Beam, a Lansdown nurse, as its president. Dr. Charles L. Wilbur, of Camp Hill, was named president-elect and Paul W. Purdon, of Philadelphia, vice president.

Religion Is Dilemma Of School Officials

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of two special reports by the United Press on the growing national controversy over the place of religion in the public schools.

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—The thorniest dilemma facing America's public schools as they prepare for a new fall term is how to handle the "fourth R"—religion.

In hundreds of communities across the nation, school administrators are caught in the middle of steadily mounting pressures from two directions.

On one side are parents, teachers and clergymen who believe that a child's education is incomplete unless it includes some knowledge of the religious beliefs that have helped to shape U.S. history, and in which millions of Americans find the ultimate values and motivations of life.

This faction includes most Catholics and a very large number of Protestants. It apparently constitutes a substantial majority in many communities.

Strong Opposition
On the other side are vigorous dissenters who contend there is no place for religious instruction or observances in a tax-supported school which serves children of many different creeds.

This faction includes most Jews, some Protestants, and virtually all humanists, ethical culturists and militant unbelievers. Although it is often badly outnumbered, it is vocal in its protests and it has a powerful ally on its side—the Supreme Court of the United States.

Acting on an appeal brought by Mrs. Vashti McCollum, an atheist of Champaign, Ill., the court in 1948 outlawed a system which had been widely adopted by public schools to resolve the problem of how to teach religion in a country characterized by a great diversity of religious beliefs.

Under this system, called the "released time" plan, children were released from other studies at certain periods to attend religious classes taught by representatives of various faiths. Each child received instruction in the faith designated by his parents, or, if the parents chose, spent the "released time" in a study hall.

The court held 8-1 that this plan breached the "wall of separation between church and state" erected by the First Amendment to the Constitution. It said any instruction in sectarian religious doctrine on public school property was illegal—no matter who did the teaching.

Some public schools—"a very small minority" according to the American Council on Education—took the McCollum decision as a mandate to banish all reference to God from their classrooms. These schools consider it their duty to teach "moral and spiritual values" but to ignore the religious convictions which support these values for most Americans.

Other school systems chose to ignore the Supreme Court. The state of Virginia, for example, still permits "time" religious instruction in public school classrooms in 41 counties. At least eight other states, according to a recent survey, allow religious groups to use school property in various ways.

A large majority of public schools, however, have sought to work out a compromise between the limitations imposed by the Supreme Court and the voiced desires of many parents for some sort of "religious" activity in school life.

A nationwide poll of school officials conducted by the American Council on Education indicates that the most popular solution is to provide school activities which are vaguely "religious" in nature, but which are so bereft of any specific doctrinal content that few would call them "sectarian" religion.

Here Are Examples
Examples which turned up frequently in the American Council study include:

Reading passages from the Bible without comment (Old Testament passages are often stipulated if there are Jewish children in the school); "non-denominational" prayers calculated to offend no one; (New York public schools use the fourth stanza of the patriotic hymn "America"); grace before meals; special celebrations of major religious holidays (Christmas is usually linked with Hanukkah, Easter with Passover.)

All of these activities involve, at minimum, a recognition of the existence of deity. To an atheist, even this is "sectarian religious teaching" and therefore beyond the pale of the court ruling. But there evidently are few atheists like Mrs. McCollum who are ready to undertake costly court battles for their point of view.

Religious People Protest
Protests have come rather from people of deep religious convictions who feel that exposure to this melange of vague religiosity will hamper instead of help a child in the development of a meaningful faith.

"What we are witnessing," says the famous Jewish attorney, Leo Pfeffer, "is the gradual emergence of a strange, new, hybrid creed, an artificial religion. It is different from any of the existing faiths, yet it resembles them all. This patchwork quilt might be called the faith of the lowest common denominator, or more simply, 'the public school religion.'"

If there is one point on which Protestants, Catholics, Jews and unbelievers agree, it is that "public school religion" is an unsatisfactory answer to the problem.

Soviets Find Salmon Banded In America

LONDON (UP)—Soviet fishermen have caught a salmon banded in America in the Siberian Uda River, Moscow Radio claimed today. The broadcast said "this find is of a considerable interest to scientists."

The final stages of work are being completed on the Grandview Elementary School in Morrisville. The new school will be completed in time for its Sept. opening and will have about 200 students. The new school is adjacent to the proposed site of the new junior senior high school. (Courier-Times Photo).

Firemen Set Alarm Policy

Frank Cowell, chief of Morrisville's Union Fire Company, reiterated the borough stand today on "no silent alarms."

It has been an understood practice in the borough by the two chiefs, Cowell and Roland Girton, Capitol View Fire Company and borough chief in Morrisville's alternating system of chiefs, that this system of "no silent alarms" will be followed.

No Whistle
Firemen describe a silent alarm as one in which no whistle blows and firemen are called out by telephone.

"We strictly enforce this system of no silent alarms," Chief Cowell said.

Chief Cowell explained that a misunderstanding might have been created by firemen not being called to a field fire over the weekend in Lower Makefield.

"We went to help a fellow out. We set the small field fire to burn off his dried field and we had about a dozen men from the two companies at the fire should any emergency arise."

No Violation
"This is in no way a violation of our policy of 'no silent alarms,'" the chief said.

The field which the firemen burned off was under control at all times, the chief said.

'Helpful' Stranger Lifts Wallet Of Trenton Man

A Trenton man visited Morrisville recently and probably wished he didn't.

Joseph Pentz, 127 Stewart Ave., was sitting on a stool in the VFW Post Home and fell off.

Several people helped him to his feet. One person he did not know helped him to his feet, dusted him off and put him back on his stool.

Several minutes later he reached into his back pocket for his wallet. The wallet was gone. The helping stranger was no longer in the room either.

Pentz told Mahlon Cummings, Morrisville police, the wallet contained all his important papers, train tickets to his family home in Mass., and $50 in cash.

Prince Juan Carlos Trains At Academy

MARIN, Spain (UP)—Prince Juan Carlos, believed slated to be Spain's next king, has begun training at Spain's naval academy here, it was announced today. The 19-year-old son of Don Juan, pretender to the throne, will study here until December. He recently was commissioned in the army after a two-year stint at the military academy as part of an intensive training program apparently preparing him to rule Spain.

Japanese Ship Breaks Long Precedent

BARI, Italy (UP)—A Japanese ship has entered this Italian Adriatic port for the first time in 33 years, port officials said today. The vessel was the fishing boat Hokomaru from Tokyo. It was returning from an expedition in the South African seas and unloaded several tons of fish here.

Trucker Pays Fine On Overweight Load

John Breiner, Quakertown RD 3, was fined $60 and $5 costs for driving an overweight truck through the borough.

Officer Joseph Cavanaugh arrested Breiner, driving for the K and L Company on South Pennsylvania Ave. in Morrisville. Breiner was carrying sand in his truck.

Less than one-fifth of the hogs marketed in the United States are of the meat type.

Firemen's Parade Set For Borough

The Morrisville Fire Department will host the 1958 Bucks County Firemen's Association Parade on June 14, 1958, in the borough. This will be the first time in 19 years that Morrisville has played host to the visiting firemen.

Each year the locale of the parade is changed.

Capitol View and Union Fire Companies have appointed representatives to a joint parade committee. Co-chairmen are the chiefs of the two companies.

Firemen Plan Picnic Talk

The Capitol View Fire Company of Morrisville will meet Thursday to finalize plans for the company's yearly picnic.

The Thursday meeting is scheduled for the fire house on Pennsylvania Ave. at 8 p.m.

John Toth, chairman of the picnic committee, said the affair will be on the picnic grounds of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post Home at 101 Hillcrest Ave., Morrisville, Sept. 8.

Other members of the committee include Michael Sayko, co-chairman; Robert Williams, Robert Woolf, Benjamin Loveland, Wilbur Albright, Walter Koons and Robert Patterson.

Tickets for the picnic can be secured from the committee members before Aug. 28.

Picnic Is Scheduled In Rain Or Shine

The Union Fire Company in Morrisville has announced that weather or no, a picnic is scheduled for Sept. 1.

Harold Hall, chairman of the picnic, said the event will be held in the firehouse in case of rain.

Food will be supplied by the fire company, and if the sun shines the event will be staged in the picnic grove of the VFW Post home in Morrisville at 101 Hillcrest Ave.

Starting time for the picnic is 1 p.m.

Gov. Goodwin Knight Up For Reelection

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UP)—Gov. Goodwin J. Knight will be a candidate for re-election as governor of California in 1958.

Knight formally announced his intention to run Monday admitting it came as a surprise to no one. He is a Republican.

The chances are his opponent will be Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.). The Senate minority leader has said he will not run for re-election as senator, although he has not directly stated he will run for governor.

Trenton Driver Held On 3 Charges In Falls

A Trenton driver was being held in $500 bail in Falls Township yesterday facing charges of reckless driving, passing a stop sign and drunken driving.

John Sweeney, 21 of 21 Laurel Ave., will have a hearing on the charges today before JP John Melvin.

Police said Sweeney crashed into the car of Richard Gage, Yardley Ave., Fallsington, at the intersection of Tybourn Road and Trenton Road.

CARDINAL VISITS POPE

CASTELGANDOLFO, Italy UP—Francis Cardinal Spellman visited Pope Pius XII at his summer home today, on the New Yorker's 25th anniversary as a prelate.

Cop Guilty Of False Charge

CAMDEN, N. J. (UP)—A Camden patrolman was found guilty yesterday at a departmental hearing on charges growing out of the alleged falsification of a stolen auto report.

The policeman, William McDade Jr., 32, of 863 Bergen Ave., was given the hearing on charges stemming from an incident last June 6 when he reported his auto stolen and John Koplan, 37, of Berkeley St., near 4th, Camden, was arrested for the theft.

Koplan was later sentenced on a traffic violation and the auto theft charge. He was acquitted later of the auto theft after appealing to the prosecution for an investigation, charging that McDade had told him he could borrow the auto.

Public Safety Director E. George Aaron did not immediately announce what punishment McDade would be given.

Union Man Condemns Racketeering Publicity

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—A union president Monday condemned the unfavorable publicity stemming from the current Senate investigation into labor racketeering but expressed hope that some good will come of it.

Wilfrid T. Connell, president of the International Photo-Engravers Union (AFL-CIO), told delegates to his group's 56th annual convention that "we deplore the publicity especially the kind that reflects on other unions."

He said "ours is an honest union" and when any defalcations turn up within it, they are dealt with immediately.

Connell noted that minimum wage rates for the 17,000 members of the photo-engravers union are as high as $4.59 per hour, and that increases this year are higher than last year.

Police Cock Ears For (Hustled) Off Beat Drum

Morrisville police are looking for someone who is not beating his own drum.

A bass drum was stolen recently from a car parked in front of the VFW Post Home in Morrisville at 101 Hillcrest Ave. yesterday.

The car of Bill MacCabe, 314 Johnston Ave., Morrisville, was broken into and the drum, drum equipment, and a sideview mirror to the car were stolen.

MacCabe told Joseph DiGiorgio, Morrisville police, who investigated, the drum and equipment was valued at $180.

Charles Leach Faces Driving Violation

A Morrisville man was charged with not yielding the right of way yesterday by Morrisville police after colliding with a Trenton driver at the intersection of Pennsylvania Ave. and Bridge St., Morrisville.

Officer Mahlon Cummings said Charles Leach, 108 Bank St., Morrisville, crashed into Edward Zaryckij, 734 Penn Ave., Trenton.

Police said Leach was attempting to make a turn into Pennsylvania Ave. when the accident occurred.

No injuries were reported in the accident.

New Jersey Man Dies After Crash

WOODBURY, N. J. (UP)—Ernest J. Paiment, 72, of 815 Clonnet St., Paulsboro, N. J., died early today of injuries suffered Monday night when his auto was involved in a collision with another at an intersection here.

Police said Paiment failed to yield the right of way at the intersection to an auto driven by Arthur Madeo, 945 Chestnut Ave., Woodbury, and was struck in the rear by the other car.

The victim was taken to Underwood Hospital here where he died seven hours later of head injuries. Madeo was not injured.

Agriculture Boss May Get Subpena

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson today faced a threat of a possible subpoena from a senator who has been trying to locate him.

The threat was the latest attack against Benson over his 50-day cross-country trip.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) said yesterday he may try to subpoena Benson to get him to testify before the reorganization subcommittee.

Humphrey told the Senate he has been trying unsuccessfully for weeks to get Benson to testify on reports that he has been exercising a veto over loans of the Rural Electrification Administration. Now, Humphrey said, a Benson aide told him the secretary does not plan to appear before any more congressional committees this session.

Humphrey said he does not know whether a cabinet officer can be made the target of a congressional subpoena. But he said Benson "surely deserves" a subpoena "and I'm going to look into it."

Benson, who returned to his office last week for the first time since late June, called a news conference today that was certain to include questions on his absence from the capital.

Elks Elect President For State

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Pennsylvania Elks have elected John Buchanan, an oil firm executive from Everett, as president of the state fraternal and service organization.

Buchanan, named Monday to succeed A. Lewis Heisey, Elizabethtown, will be installed Wednesday along with other officers of the BPOE. The new state leader of the Elks was a member of the Washington & Jefferson football team which held California to a scoreless tie in the 1922 Rose Bowl game.

Other officers elected at the 51st annual convention here were Paul Seeders, Pottstown, vice president; Wilbur G. Warner, Lehighton, secretary; W. E. Whitacre, Kittanning, treasurer, and Boyd Adams, Butler, grand trustee.

The 41-year career of William S. Gould, Scranton, as secretary ended when Gould decided not to seek re-election.

More than 1,500 delegates from Elks lodges are attending the four-day session which closes Wednesday. Most of their business sessions are devoted to the Elks program of aid to children in a fight against juvenile delinquency.

Borough Council To Continue Meeting

Morrisville's Borough Council will resume its recessed meeting of last week at 8 o'clock tonight in the borough hall.

Five committees, sanitation, fire, public property, finance, and police, will report at tonight's meeting.

Borough secretary Bob Steward said the meeting will be of routine nature.

Morrisville Rotary Slates Hungary Talk

The Morrisville Rotary Club will hear a talk entitled "Behind the Iron Curtain in Hungary" at its regular meeting this week.

Stephen Konjathy, formerly of Hungary, will speak at the meeting Thursday at 6:15 o'clock at Pennsbury Inn.

Mr. Konjathy is employed in the engineering department of Roebling Corp.
